The Wedding Day.

For the benefit of engaged couples the following prophecy in reference to the selection of the wedding day is given:

"Wed on Monday-always poor: Wed on Tuesday-wed once more; Wed on Wednesday-happy match; Wed on Thursday-splendid catch; Wed on Friday-poorly mated; Wed on Saturday-better waited; Wed on Sunday-Cupid's wooing; Wed in the morning-seldom ruing."

Copied from an old scrapbook the above is quite a curiosity in its way, although experience proves that it is not altogether

With these they formed an arch through which the bride walked to the floral altar erected under great old trees for the taking of her marriage vows. The open-air wedding admits of many old wedding customs not suited to the drawing room, among them the German one of throwing the bride's bouquet. For this the bride is blindfolded, and stands in her white er with hands joined. Suddenly she throws her bouquet (in which a ring is hidden) high in the air, and the girl who catches the flowers as they fall is des- city, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. tined to be the next bride. The wedding breakfast is served al fresco if the day is fine, either on one large table or many small ones, as preferred. With the going away of the bride rice is no longer showered, but thrown in little satin bags piled up for the purpose on small tables on the porch. When the carriage after it, the orchestra plays and the guests dance gaily on the green until they depart.

Care of the Rubber Plant.

New York Tribune. Few housewives realize the amount of care which rubber plants require. They are frequently the most forlorn objects to look upon, as the leaves are so large and of so deep a green that dust is plainly in evidence, a fact of which many owners of these plants seem unaware. It may not be known that the plant "breathes" through its leaf and its life is menaced when its lungs are choked with dust. A caretaking woman who has great success with her plants sponges off each leaf on both the under and upper sides at least three times week, and more often if the plant has been exposed to an unusual amount of dust. Only enough water should be poured on the roots to keep the soil soft and moist, and once a week the earth should be loosened about the roots, two teaspoonfuls of castor oil allowed to drip upon them and then the earth is replaced. The plant should never be allowed to grow in ungainly fashion, but properly dwarfed into a shapely bush form.
